

A NEW MEDIUM FOR CREATION

What is it?

MakerSphere started as a solution to a problem of my own.

I wanted a tool that filled all the gaps in my own creative process. I have never found a satisfying simple-to-use tool offering a real-time collaborative digital design space for my friends and I.

Maker Sphere is a collaborative social space that provides an easy way of harvesting your ideas into action. It makes it super easy to invite your friends, family, colleagues or maker's from around the world to your creative projects.

MakerSphere provides a place to store, organize and revisit all of your ideas creating your new 'go-to' place to be creative. You can even share your completed projects on a 'Public Sphere' for the boast factor.

MakerSphere is a collaborative community for creative people of all backgrounds to mingle ideas, exchange skills and create action in their lives and communities. Skill exchange from a diverse umbrella of people will be the largest driver of innovation for community and Creatives in the emerging digital age.

The Website where anyone who visits can help innovate to create a better world.

Why is it Awesome?

Other than inspiring innovation in artistic mediums, MakerSphere also has potential for inspiring social change:

'Although Hacking carries a stigma of mischief-making or political subversion it is now being used as a tool of social constitution. It's about a society connecting and collaborating on a higher level to provide the most creative solutions to governmental issues. In the era of the smartphone we have all the tools we need to contribute towards a greater whole.' – This is my Thesis from CCDN271.

I Believe MakerSphere could also be a powerful tool for restoring trust in government by giving the people more leverage over the direction of their communities by actively 'joining' community themed projects, right from the comfort of their couch.

With trust in government steadily declining and trust in internet media recently surpassing trust in television media I believe there is an opening for a new unique digital movement.
